The things you have to see during training. Seriously, you know very well what is the best way to punish a doctor? Send them to give a rectal exam... Believe me there is nothing worse. I remember it was my first day as well as I was finding the whole on duty for 24 hours concept a little hard to swallow or should i say I could scarcely keep my damn eyes open. So my trainer decided I needed to get a fresh perspective on things... Little did I know the point of view would be anal (no pun intended). So I entered the examination room and this woman who have to be about 60 sat right in front of me, with her gown the other way round.

Made me wonder, if she thought her doctor was a guy, anyhow, in the event it picture has not been disturbing sufficient to scar me forever, on inquiry I found out that the lady had severe constipation. Today I know that being a professional, I was not supposed to feel embarrassed tackling the patient but her very incredibly graphic explanation of her problem, taught me to be understand the reason why I was given this case. While I grabbed my pen wearing that white coat and stethoscope that I love, the lady certainly grabbed my focus when she explained that at one point her buttocks was itchy, it hurt and while passing stool she would bleed.

Due to the secrecy matters, I will not type out exactly what she said but let us just say that being so young, facing a lady's bum, along with her being particular, left me reasonably uncomfortable. Long story short, the woman once had hemorrhoids. Hemorrhoids are painful, swollen veins in the lower portion of the rectum or anus. They usually occur during pregnancy and after bouts of constipation. The straining and pressure usually causes the veins in the anal area to become enflamed and tender, which happens to result in several symptoms like Arschfick itching, Anal ache or pain, especially while sitting down, vivid red blood during or even after passing stool, pain throughout bowel movements.

I did not really understand exactly why the lady has been there, when she had no real difficulty. I mean she had cured the constipation and her hemorrhoids seemed to be sizably reduced, at least keeping in mind the description that she had given me. It was day 1 so I couldn't loose patience but finally asked, "Ma'am, if you do not suffer from any ailment, why are you here?", she informed that she was here to meet her original doctor yet I showed up as an alternative. "I can help you with whatever you need." "No, I needed to show him something". I paused, "Umm, it is possible to tell me and I will help you, I am trained..." right then and there she cut me off and said she wanted to prove her doctor wrong.

Of Course in Which Made Me Realise that this Here Woman Could be a Problematic Patient

She asked me to take a seat and said that she almost always had hemorrhoids and nothing that the doctor gave her seemed to help, that is untill her child found out about Venapro. Apparently she used Venapro Hemorrhoid Method along with drinking a lot of water and felt better than ever. After taking up much of my valuable time, when I finally returned to the caf, that grin from my trainer did not leave me as well pleased. Though now when I think of it the whole experience makes me laugh because an estranged old woman came to a me and said, "I do not need the crappy medicines, I have Venapro Hemorrhid Formula. It repaired my shitter like nothing else did!"
